On motion of E. D. HOLTON, the Corresonding Secretary of the Y. M. Rep. Club. was instructed to inform the different Re publican organizations, to whom invitations and been extended to join in the Saware selebration, of this determination. ALEXANDER MITCHELL, Ch'a J. P. SEANAN, Secty.

Senator Saward will be at the Newhall Honse from 12 to 3 o'clock, to day, and will e happy to meet such of our citizens as may find time to call upon him.

A CARD .- We the undersigned, passeners on the Northern Transportation. Company's steamer Michigan, from Ogdensburgh and Oswego, August 31st, 1860, wish (thro the medium of your journal) to express our esteem and admiration of her able Commander, Capt. J. M. Lawis, and the officers under im,—at the same time congratulating him upon the sea going qualities of his noble amer. Capt. Lawis, who is a thorough allor and boatman, cool, collected and competent to all emergencies, combining those qualities with the courteous and polite gentlenan. During the severe gale on Lake Michigan, 7th inst., all those qualities shone forth n their true light, and won the admiration fall on beard.

Well may the company by whom he ployed, feel proud of such a man. With our best wishes for his future prosrity and happiness, we take our leave of re gallant Captain, hoping we shall again

FERLOW CITIENS:—If I appear in obedience to your call to night, I hope it will only be a new filhstration of an old practice of mine, never to give up an honest and virtuous attempt, though I might fail in it the first time. I tried to day and utterly failed to make the Republicans of Michigan hear, and now, in obedience to your call to-night remew the effort. The end, on the part of the people, is on hand. It is now upon up, and the simple reason is that the people have become at least attractive, willing to be convinced, and satisfied of the soundness of the Republican faith. It has been a task. We had first to reach the young through the prijudices of the old. I have never expected my own age and generation to relinguish the prijudices in which they and I were born. I have expected, as has been the case heretofore in the history of mankind, that the old would remain unconverted, and that the scat. FELLOW CITIZENS:-It I appear in obedi-

(Laughter and applauss)—The first generation of the young men of the country, educated in the Republican faith, has appeared in your presence by a strong and bold demonstrative representation tonight. It is the young men who constitute the Wide Awake force. Ten years ago, and twenty ago, the Wide Awake force were incapable of being organized for the distraction of the country and the Republican cause.—Today the young man of the United States are for the first time on the side of freedom against slavery. (Great applause) Go on, then, and do your work. Put this great cause into the keeping of your great, honest, worthy leader, Abraham Lincoln. Believe me sincers when I say that if had devolved in the supplement of the select from all men in the United in the state of the select from all men in the United in the select from all men in the United in the select from all men in the United states. me sincere when I say that II I had devoted upon me to aslect from all men in the United States a men to whom I should conside the standard of this cause—which is the object for which I have lived and for which I would be standard of the be witting to die - that man would have been Abraham Lincoln. (Great applause)

Edward Presett's Life of Washington. We append the concluding paragraphs of Mr. Everett's memoir, as furnishing at once a specimen of the style, and some very sensible remarks upon the subject of Genius, by way of defining that much misunderstood word, and justifying its application to Gen. WASHINGTON:

"Akin to the argument against his mill-"Akin to the argument against his mill-tary espacity, is the question whether, generally speaking. Washington was a man of genius—a question not to be answered till that word is explained. Dr. Johnson calls it, that power which constitutes a poet, and in that acceptation Washington certainly was not endowed with it. As little did he possess the genius of the crator, the man of letters, the sculptor, the painter, the man of letters, the sculptor, the painter, the man excell it. The term is so habitually, not to say exclusively, appropriated to that native power, which enables men to excel in science, literature, and the fine arts, that those who

Early on Sunday morning a body of man, we should judge to be 22 or 23 years of age, came ashore near Evanston. He is supposed to be a Milwankee man, by the name of GALLIGHER. His under shirt i marked on the neck band with the juitials "H. P. C." with red thread. Has black whiskers all around his face; moustache about two weeks growth; left boot out ope in the instep. GEN. RUIUS KING, MILWAUKEE: - Den

Sir: -- I left yesterday with Capt. BECKER, Black Yazers: Lieut. VERHEIN, of Artillery and thirteen men of different companies for this place to try if we could recover the bodies of those unfortunate people lost with the steamer "Lady Elgin." We have worked very hard all this time for that purpose and ancoveded in finding one dead person A. S. Evanston. Jas. White and I conveyed it to Winnetka station, for the Coroner's inquest. At the same time, we found DECORS, who was saved, and stays at the Evanton Hotel. We shall still stay here and recover all we can; also, a good deal of passenger property we deliver to the proper authorities. Two dead bodies of ladies have just been washed ashore at Evansion. A committee of gentlemen was formed here today, who came with the train this morning, but they have not thought it proper to act in harmony with us.

Yours truly, TH. HORWITZ.

STATEMENT OF GEO. DAVIS, FIRST MARK OF

THE LADY ELGIN. I was in bed at the time of the collision; as soon as I heard the crash, I jumped up and ran on deck: went to the pilot-house and ascertained the course of the steamer, and headed her for shore; not over a minute after, I changed her course, the Captain came and asked me how I was stearing; I told him, for shore; he then said, I am afraid the boat is sinking, and ordered me to blow the whistle and ring the bell, for the schooner to stand by us. I blowed the whiatle and then fied the rope so as to keep up a continuous whistle, and went and rung the bell for about half a minute and then, re turned to the pilot-house and remained the till the engine stopped, when the Captain ordered me to take mattrasses and blankets and go in the small boat, and see if I could stop the break from the out side; some five or six threw the life-boat overboard; she filled with water; we jumped in her and balled her out; we endeavored to reach the steamer bur when about three rods off her she went down; we had but two cars and could not manage her; there were 5 in the boat: Gro. BAVIS, 1st. mate, saved; WM. BERNAN, 2d mate, saved; a boy by the name of Hogan, (a dock sweep,) saved. Effort Mongan, a watchman, lost; the name of the other i unknown also lost. We let the boat drift ashore, but when we reached the breakers the surf capsized the host, and we then endeavored to reach the shore by swimming.

After getting on shore I found the boy

Houan had also gained a footing; I saw the 2nd mate struggling in the water and called to him; he answered that he could not stand and for me to throw him a line; I started to find one and had to go nearly a mile before could find one, but when I returned he had managed to get upon the bank by himself. The 1st Mate thinks there was no record of the excursionists, but all the regular passengers for Lake Superior, who had paid their fare, that their names were registered Have no doubt but that nearly every person on board would have been saved, if th schooner had remained by us, or if the had anchored as soon as we blew our whistle, we could easily have reached her with our boats. When struck we were about six miles out, and must have been at least four miles from shore when the steamer went down.

Was on the promenade deck at the time of the accident. Capt: Wilson stood by the pilot house door; saw the light of the schooner about four or five minutes before she struck, on her port bow. As soon as I gaw the light I ordered the pilot to put his helm hard port. Capt. Wilson gave the same order at the same time. I immediately ran into the pilot house and assisted the wheelsman. There were two at the wheel when I went in. The schooner acted as if she did not see us, not altering her course in the least. The schooner struck us in th midship gangway on the larboard side, and cut her hull close to the water's edge. The buckets on the port wheel were all knocked off. I left the pilot house as soon as she struck, to see what damage was done; called for the carpenter to assist me: The Captain boat, with matrases and blankets, and see process, in the ward, for fall low of the low. boat, with matrasses and blankets, and see if we could stop the leak. When the boat, struck the water a sea took her and earrie. her under the guards and filled her full o water. I jumped into her and commence bailing her out. Mr. Davis and two others then jumped in and assisted me in bailing the boat. We were then attached to the steamer, but about fifty attempting to jump prevailed throughout Saturday, we are within, we cut the painter and floated off a short our usual telegraphic despatches. distance. In bailing her out she shipped two or three seas and it took us some time before we could manage her. As soon as we could command her we tried to get back to
